

NEWS

MULTIMEDIA

NEWSLETTER

MEDIA RELATIONS CONTACTS

SUBSCRIBE BY RSS

Home > News > Indonesia: New mob attack on Ahmadiyya amid sentencing controversy

Like

NEWS AUGUST 15, 2011

Indonesia: New mob attack on Ahmadiyya amid sentencing controversy

The Indonesian authorities must act to halt attacks on the country's Ahmadi minority, Amnesty International said today, after a radical Islamist group led an attack on the Ahmadiyya in Makassar, South Sulawesi.

Hundreds of members of the group the Islamic Defender's Front (FPI) attacked some ten Ahmadiyya in their place of worship on Sunday.

Armed with machetes and bamboo sticks, the FPI members stormed the building at around 1am and attacked worshippers, inflicting serious head injuries on at least one Ahmadi.

Three local human rights defenders, two from the Indonesian Legal Aid Institute (LBH) in Makassar and one from the Indonesian Forum for the Environment (WALHI) were beaten by the mob while trying to stop the attacks. According to them, police officers who were present did nothing to stop the violence or protect the victims.

"The Indonesian authorities must immediately investigate and punish these attacks on the Ahmadiyya and human rights defenders in South Sulawesi," said Donna Guest, Amnesty International's Asia-Pacific Deputy Director.

"They must also investigate allegations that police stood by and did nothing to stop these attacks."

The previous evening dozens of FPI members had ransacked the building, breaking its windows and damaging a vehicle.

"We fear that some groups now think that they can attack religious minorities and human rights defenders without any fear of serious consequences," said Donna Guest.

The fresh attacks have taken place amid a sentencing controversy over a fatal mob attack in February in Banten province on the home of an Ahmadi leader by over a thousand people wielding rocks, machetes, swords and spears.

An Indonesian court today sentenced Deden Sudjana of the Ahmadi community to six months' imprisonment for incitement and 'maltreatment' during the February mob attack on the Ahmadiyya property. Three Ahmadis were beaten to death in the attack.

On 28 July, 12 of the attackers received sentences of three to six months, and none were tried for murder.

"The Ahmadiyya are not receiving adequate protection from the security forces or the courts," said Donna Guest.

In January 2011, hundreds of FPI members attacked an Ahmadiyya community centre in South Sulawesi, vandalising the building while the police looked on. Amnesty International is not aware of any investigation into the attacks.

There have also been reports of raids on entertainment outlets and food stalls by FPI members in Makassar since the beginning of Ramadan, the Muslim holy month of fasting.

South Sulawesi's provincial government is reportedly preparing a regulation issued by the Governor that would unlawfully restrict Ahmadiyya activities in the province.

Stay informed about
Amnesty's work.

YOUR EMAIL ADDRESS

Stop LGBT discrimination in Turkey!

With the new government in Turkey promising to introduce important constitutional changes, now is the time to adopt comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation to protect the rights of all LGBT people in Turkey.

TAKE ACTION

VIEW ALL ACTIONS

You can help protect human rights.

DONATE NOW

"There are concerns that the authorities are not treating violence against the Ahmadiyya seriously. The Indonesian police must do more to protect religious minorities from attacks and intimidation," said Donna Guest.

The Ahmadiyya are a religious group who consider themselves a part of Islam; however many Muslim groups say they do not adhere to the accepted belief system.

No Closure for Guantanamo

Stop Congress in their latest attempt to keep Guantanamo open, before it's too late.

TAKE ACTION

VIEW ALL ACTIONS

100 Years in Solitary

39 years ago, 3 young black men were put in solitary confinement at the Louisiana State Penitentiary; 2 are still in isolation. But the 'Angola 3' refuse to be silent as they fight for justice.

READ MORE

VIEW ALL REPORTS

U.S. Death Penalty Facts

Capital punishment does not work. There is a wealth of mounting evidence that proves this. Learn compelling death penalty facts and figures.

READ MORE

VIEW ALL ISSUES

Ailing Dissident Priest Jailed Again in Viet Nam

Prominent human rights activist Father Nguyen Van Ly has been re-arrested in Viet Nam while on parole to treat serious health problems.

LEARN MORE

VIEW ALL CASES